SCIENTIFIC INTRODUCTION

Dear Colleagues and Friends,

Dynamic Psychiatry means from its beginning the integration of the psychodynamic understanding of personality and unconscious processes for the treatment of severely mentally ill patients. Günter Ammon has developed Dynamic Psychiatry further to a group dynamically oriented science which considers the conscious and unconscious as inter-relational and social energetic dynamics and processes and a central agent for human development and creativity.

Creativity means potentiality for development which is inherent in every human being. Every psychotherapeutic and developmental process of a human being means a creative process by differentiating and demarcating from unconscious destructive or deficient group dynamics. For experiencing an identity developmental process by gaining creativity a constructive group dynamically surrounding or social energetic field is necessary «thus, creativity always implies a gain in structure to a change in personality and the group [...] creativity touches the person as a whole and is expressed in a creative lifestyle in a way that one's own feelings, thoughts, and actions have enough space and that the person respects himself as well as others». (Ammon 1982, p. 727). Creative processes in psychotherapy and psychiatry will always challenge for new thinking, new research findings and new treatment aspects for activating and creativating arrested identity development. To find new possibilities, hypothesis, assumptions and new creative conditions in our fast changing world will be the common interest of our congress.

We are hoping that the encounter of scientists from various disciplines like medicine, psychiatry, psychology, psychoanalysis and psychotherapy could promote the integration of interdisciplinary research. It is our wish that also interdisciplinary findings from sociology, philosophy, pedagogy, the cultural anthropology and others will facilitate the discourse on this topic. Furthermore, it is our wish that at this WADP congress in 2017 the sciences of mankind can contribute in a way that problems related to creativity can be perceived, consolidated and integrated in the service of our patients. Again we would like to thank the international organizations, the WPA, the WASP, the WFMH, EAP, ECCP and ICPCM and World Association of Psychosocial Rehabilitation for their support. We are also exceptionally thankful for the excellent cooperation of the organizing Italian WADP branch members and the co-workers of Erich Fromm International Foundation. We are looking very much forward to welcoming you in Florence, one of the most beautiful cities in the world, filled with historical and artistic masterpieces by the greatest masters of Humanism and the Renaissance. This will be a wonderful creative atmosphere for our congress.

President of the 18th WADP congress

Maria Ammon
President of the German Academy for Psychoanalysis (DAP) e. V.

Dear Colleagues and Friends,

If we mean "creativity" as the capability of the human mind of creating and inventing, the creative dimension - that gives shape to psychic processes - can be explored from various points of view.

We must consider that the consequence of "creativity" permeates plenty of aspects of human life and mental health, from the imagery to brandnew clinical and rehabilitation technologies.

2017 WADP Congress aims to better understand the creative process in the different areas of study. There will be dialectical focuses on issues such as psychopathology, interpersonal dynamics, behaviour, vulnerability factors, personality structures, conscious and unconscious creative processes.

This will allow the discussion from several approaches (e.g. clinic, psychiatric, psychological, anthropologic, philosophic, social, education ones) in the evocative atmosphere of Florence, that will certainly help to open the horizon to any art, as a background to affective dimension: dance, literature, music, plastic and figurative art, theatre and in general every performance art and - as a consequence - language, communication, interpretation.

Therefore, it will be taken into consideration the expression of creativity from the developmental stage - in the neurologic and rehabilitation aspects - up to excellence of various social, economic, intellectual functions, in which the dispositional characteristics crosses with the environment status.

Of course, the displaying of creativity permeates the clinical health processes, both from the prevention and the recovery of damaged functions, and lives throughout the work of every single mental health professional that often faces clinical decisions using the divergent thinking. In the word of Magritte, it is necessary an "unusual combination" to come to an effective solution to novel questions in work concerning the affective, interior and interpersonal life.
